The Karuvelam tree, or Prosopis juliflora as its known biologically, is a species native to West Africa and was brought to Tamil Nadu in 1960s as fuelwood. Slowly, these seeds started drifting into dams and rivers, causing problems. Apparently, the plant is such that no other species can co-exist with it, and it has already caused drying up of several water bodies in the state, adding to the woes of the water-starved state.

The Karuvelam species is a biological nightmare. According to a report by the RathinamSaroja Trust, an NGO which works for environmental issues, Karuvelam tree absorbs more than four litres of water to obtain one kilogram of biomass. It cannot even shelter birds as it produces less oxygen and more carbon dioxide. If it does not have sufficient water it begins absorbing groundwater. And if there is no groundwater, it starts absorbing humidity from the surroundings. It can also turn the groundwater poisonous.

The report also states that Karuvelam seeds have been making inroads into government land which includes irrigation tanks. The solution the report provides is that it should be uprooted instead of being cut or cleared. If it is cut, these trees have the tendency to grow back faster.

A Rally on the eradication of SeemaiKaruvelam Trees was done on 21.02.2017 from District Court through KamarajarSalai. 143 students from Thiagarajar College participated in this rally.
